Thanks to all those who generously donated money to our two Memorial Funds, the IANLS is pleased to offer a number of Travel Bursaries to help doctoral students and early career researchers (within three years of their PhD award) meet the costs of travel to the Nineteenth International Congress of the IANLS in Aix-en-Provence, France. Up to 10 grants of €300 will be made available.

Preference will be given to applicants who intend to present a paper or poster at the Congress. Others may be considered if they can present an exceptionally strong case for their attendance as registered delegates.

Travel should be by the most economical means possible, making full use of advance purchase fares or any reductions available. Local bus, train and underground fares as well as airport transfers by public transport may be included. The cost of taxis, mileage costs for travel by car and car parking charges will not normally be reimbursed. In case of hardship, accommodation and subsistence costs for the duration of the congress may be invoked, but priority will normally be given to defraying the costs of international travel over longer distances. Please indicate the basis on which the costing is made (e.g. international rail website, flight comparison site).

*Electronic signatures are acceptable. Submissions from an institutional e-mail address are preferred.

We hope to inform you of the outcome of your application by the beginning of December 2024. Successful applicants will be asked to supply travel receipts (e-tickets, invoices) and bank details to the Treasurer for reimbursement after the congress (Bekes.Eniko@abtk.hu). Acceptance of the grant will signify a firm commitment to participation in the congress.
